Safety Tips for Pets

4th of July

Fourth of July festivities are coming soon, and the idea of including our dogs in these fun activities sounds wonderful.

However, these activities that include big crowds, sun exposure, and loud noises may be too stressful, and sometimes harmful, to your pet. The following are a few tips to ensure that the holiday will be as enjoyable and safe for your pets.

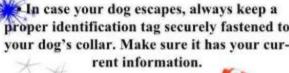

More pets get lost on July 4th than any other day of the year!

- Never leave your dog in the car. A partially opened window does not supply enough fresh air, and it also creates an opportunity for your pet to over heat, escape or be stolen.
- If your cat or dog will be home alone, consider hiring a pet sitter to stay with your pet.
- In case your dog escapes, always keep a proper identification tag securely fastened to your dog's collar. Make sure it has your cur-

- Reep windows and curtains closed to reduce noise and bright flashes. Also, turn on a TV or radio at normal volume to distract your dog from loud noises and help him to relax.
- Don't leave your dog outside. If you cannot bring him inside, cover his dog house with a blanket to protect him from the bursts of bright lights and loud bangs. Gives him a safe
- Reep your dog away from the front and back doors. Your dog may be under significant stress, which could result in unnecessary injury to others or cause him to dart out the door.
- Some dogs become destructive when frightened. Remove any items from within reach that your dog could destroy or which could hurt him if he chewed them. Always tuck cords

BRAGS

Sarah Hatcher and Gracie

Heaven's Amazing Grace aka Gracie competed in her first show in Logan, UT. In Beginner Puppy 4-Under 6 she took her Breed Shetland Sheepdog and 1st Herding Group. She is bred by myself Sara Hatcher and Shannalee Waller-Michalsky. Many thanks to the judge from Australia unfortunately I don't remember her name. Thank you to Eagle Rock Kennel Club in helping me learn to show but still so much yet to learn.

At Filer show Gracie took her class but nothing more. However a special thank you to both Debbie Sirdofsky and Tyler Crady-Roche for helping learn something on preparing Gracie for the ring.

At Blackfoot Show Heaven's Amazing Grace took her class but nothing more. However she did very well in regards to her behavior. She was successful in getting her CGC at just shy of 7 months. Gracie was also in the news paper along with her mom (Shelbie Charity Girl).

At the UKC show in Farmington Utah Heaven's Amazing Grace a.k.a. Gracie places Group 2 under judge Amy Turner. She is bred by myself and Shannalee Waller-Michalsky.

At the UKC show in Farmington Utah Heaven's Amazing Grace a.k.a. Gracie places Group 4 under judge Alan Krenik. She is bred by myself and Shannalee Waller-Michalsky. Which gives her 1 win and approximately 45 points from being a champion in UKC. Thank you Lisa Kress-Pope and Chrissy Weatherston for all your help this past weekend.

What Vegetables Can Dogs Eat?

Vegetables can be a great addition to your dog's diet if you stick to those that are safe and hand out an appropriate amount. So which vegetables are good for dogs? Let's explore the best vegetables for dogs by veggie type.

As omnivores, dogs can digest plants as well as meat. Many nutritionists believe a mixture of both is important for a healthy dog.

My darling baby boy is a 12-year-old German Shorthair Pointer mix. When he was around 6 years old he started to put on some weight. Based on a suggestion from a friend, I did some research on what vegetables dogs can eat, cut back on his commercial dog food, and added a handful of frozen green beans to his dinner. The vegetable slowed down the gobbling up of his food, added volume without many calories to help him feel full, and easily fit into my budget. The trick worked! My pup slimmed down.

Which Vegetables Are Good for Dogs, And Which Aren't? Leafy Greens

A good rule for finding leafy greens that your dog can eat is to stick to those that you would consume. Lettuce, spinach, chard, cabbage and kale are all okay for dogs. Besides being rich in vitamins A, C, and K, calcium, iron and potassium, leafy greens are also a good source of fiber. Much like humans, dogs get the most nutrients when the veggies are uncooked. Of course, if you want you can steam your dog's vegetables for something a little different, or bake them for a crunchier treat. The high fiber in leafy greens can cause some dogs to have an upset stomach after initially added to their diet. Introduce any new food slowly to keep your dog's tummy safe.

Root Vegetables

In general root vegetables like carrots, beets, sweet potatoes and parsnips are safe to feed your dog. These vegetables are starchy and high in sugar, which means you do want to limit the amount you give to your dog (especially if his commercial or raw dog food already contains root vegetables – many do).

Stalks

This includes vegetables like celery and asparagus. It may be a little harder to get your dog to enjoy these types of vegetables, but they are safe for dogs to eat. Some don't like the taste, and some find them hard to grind up in their teeth. To help, cut stalky vegetables into small pieces and/or steam them.

Squash

Squash of all varieties are safe for dogs to eat. Pumpkin and butternut squash can help dogs with bouts of diarrhea, and most dogs don't mind the taste of squash. Use up all your excess summer squash from the garden by steaming it up for your dog, or cut up and bake this year's jack-o-lantern after Halloween for your dog to eat. It's best to limit your pup's consumption to the meat of the squash, keeping the seeds and skin away.

Legumes

This vegetable group includes bean and alfalfa sprouts, mature beans such as kidney, pinto, and lentil, and peas. The topic of legumes in dog food has been in the news lately. The reason is due to a recent FDA update which states there are reports of canine dilated cardiopulmonary (DCM) in dogs eating pet foods containing legumes or potatoes high up on the ingredients list. If the protein of your dog's diet relies heavily on legumes or potatoes, you should not only avoid giving more of this plant group to your dog, but also consider reducing the levels of legumes in his main dog food, i.e. changing dog foods.

A note on green beans: Green beans may be the most widely-fed vegetable to dogs because of their taste and easy digestion. Please be aware that, despite their name, green beans are not actually classified as beans, and therefore don't warrant the limitations recommended for true legumes.

Alliums

Alliums are bulb vegetables like onions, garlic, leeks, chives, and shallots. Do not give your dog access to these plants, as they are toxic to dogs. Negative side effects of eating onions or garlic for dogs range from a stomach ache to developing anemia which, at it's worse, can cause organs to shut down.

Broccoli, Brussel sprouts, Cauliflower, Corn and Cucumber

All of these veggies are safe for your dog to munch on but, like other vegetables, keep it to small quantities – especially if your dog isn't used to eating these types of foods. Remember to take the corn off the cob before handing it over to your dog. Although the cob itself isn't bad for a dog to consume, it is easy to swallow in chunks or whole, which can cause choking or intestinal obstruction.

Whenever changing your dog's diet make sure to check with your vet, go slow, and pay attention to your dog. If you follow these guidelines, adding vegetables to your pup's food can help him receive a more varied, nutritionally complete profile in his diet.

Tips for Feeding Your Dog Vegetables:

- * Frozen bags of vegetables are often on sale. Stock up. Have a blend ready to grab in a Tupperware bowl in the freezer.
- * If your pup is sensitive to the cold of a frozen vegetable put a small bowl in the refrigerator for easy treat access.
- * For a summer treat add vegetables to a 1:1 mixture of chicken broth and water in an ice tray. Once frozen pop out one or true for a delicious hot day treat.
- * When cooking set aside the unused vegetable trimmings that are safe for your dog to consume. A great no waste alternative to throwing it in the garbage.
- * If your dog doesn't want anything to do with vegetables and you want to supplement what he is getting in his regular diet you can chop fine or puree and mix into his meals. For treats adding some dog-safe peanut butter (no sugar, just peanuts) can get your dog started. Eventually you should be able to back off on the addition and feed the vegetable plain.
- * Vegetables are a great reward in treat puzzle games. As always make sure you watch your dog when those are in use and that all edible treats are cleaned from the puzzle before storing away

A Guide to Dog-Friendly Hotel Chains in the United States

By Barbara BalfourJun 04, 2019 |

Setting off on vacation can be tough on pet owners if it means they have to leave their dogs behind. Luckily, many hotel chains are not just pup-friendly nowadays — many of them are virtually rolling out the red carpet for our furry companions. About 75 percent of luxury, mid-scale, and economy hotels now allow pets, according to a 2016 survey by the American Hotel & Lodging Association. Below you'll find some tips to ensure that your dog will be welcomed wherever you travel.

Pet Travel Checklist

Dr. Sara Ochoa, an East Texas-based veterinarian who has traveled the world with her pup in tow, suggests packing the following items in your dog's bags:

- A comforting blanket to sleep with that carries some of the normal smells of home. "This will help your dog feel comfortable and relaxed, as many like familiar smells."
- Collapsible travel bowls as well as food and water to keep bowels on track. "A new type of food, different tasting water, or bowls that are not theirs may cause them to not eat or drink," she says.
- A leash, even if your dog is used to being carried everywhere. "Training your dog to walk on a leash will help when you're on the road, especially when you're trying to carry your luggage!"
- A favorite toy or chew item to ease travel stress and pass the time on long car or plane rides.
- Potty bags to help clean up when nature calls.
- An airline-approved pet carrier that this is key your dog has already slept in. "Make going into their carrier fun and enjoyable," she says. "Let them spend time sleeping in their carrier, as this will make the trip much easier for you and your pet."

Pet-Friendly Hotel Chains

Below you'll find a list of hotel chains (in alphabetical order) where dogs are welcome. But make sure to call ahead and check for the availability of a pet-friendly room before you arrive.

- Best Western: More than 1,600 Best Western properties across the United States, Canada, and the Caribbean accommodate dogs. Pet-friendly locations allow up to two dogs, with a maximum size of 80 pounds per dog, in each room. Some properties charge $30 per day (maximum $150 per week) for each room with a pet. Additionally, there may be a refundable damage deposit of up to $150 per stay.
- Choice Hotels: More than 2,500 Choice Hotels (Comfort Inn, Comfort Suites, Sleep Inn, Quality Inn, Clarion, MainStay Suites, Suburban, EconoLodge, and Rodeway Inn) are pet-friendly. Choice boasts a number of dog-friendly hotels in some of the most "dog-friendly cities" across the country.
- DoubleTree by Hilton: More than 120 DoubleTree properties allow dogs, with a maximum non-refundable fee of $75 per room. The chain recommends calling ahead to make sure a pet-friendly room is available.
- Extended Stay America: Dogs are welcome at Extended Stay America properties. However, pets can be no longer than 36 inches and no taller than 36 inches (larger dogs require the property manager's approval). Two pets are allowed per suite with a $25 (+ tax) per day, per pet non-refundable cleaning fee for the first month (not to exceed $150 + tax per pet), payable the first night of your stay and charged at check-in. Each month thereafter is a $10 non-refundable fee (+ tax) per day for the first five days of each month (not to exceed $50 + tax per month, per pet). Bringing more than two pets also requires the property manager's approval.
- Four Seasons: Many Four Seasons properties offer accommodations for dogs at no extra charge. For example,
 Four Seasons Los Angeles at Beverly Hills provides in-room amenities including pet treats, bowls filled with Evian water, and a luxurious pet bed. The Four Seasons Chicago also provides these amenities free of charge, but only for pets under 30 pounds. Many properties have a special dining menu for dogs, along with grooming and walking services available for an additional fee through the concierge. Check with each individual hotel to find out if they accept pets and what services are offered.

- Hampton Inn: Most Hampton Inn properties do allow dogs. Number of pets, size of pets allowed, and fees may vary and are at the discretion of each hotel. However, even when pets are not allowed at a particular hotel, service animals are always permitted. Although some properties have many pet-friendly rooms, pets cannot be left unattended in them, and hotels are allowed to charge for any damage caused by an animal being kept on the property (this is for damage only it is not a "pet fee").
- Home2Suites by Hilton: Hilton's Home2Suites is overall pet-friendly and limits pets to two per suite with a maximum weight limit that varies by hotel. Check your particular hotel's website for pet fee and size limits. Dogs must be kept on a leash or in a carrier when in public areas of the hotel.
- Marriott: Marriott offers more than 1,500 dog-friendly locations across the United States through a number of hotel brands (Autograph Collection, Renaissance Hotels, Delta Hotels and Resorts, Gaylord Hotels, Courtyard, Residence Inn, SpringHill Suites, Fairfield Inn & Suites, TownePlace Suites and more). Check directly with the individual properties to find out the pet fee, weight and breed restrictions. Each pet-friendly hotel offers a range of amenities designed to accommodate pet owners.
- The Peninsula Hotels: A number of Peninsula properties allow travelers to bring their dogs. Some properties allow a maximum of two pets for a fee of $35–75 per pet. In addition, some hotels will provide food and water bowls and a luxurious dog bed. Each property has its own policies check with the individual hotel first when you book.
- The Ritz-Carlton: Many Ritz-Carlton properties are dog-friendly, but size requirements, fees, and amenities vary. For example, the Ritz-Carlton, Laguna Niguel offers a dog-friendly menu to its canine guests and charges only a $50 per night boarding fee. Pets must be leashed or held in arms in all common areas of the resort, and are not allowed in the hotel's restaurants, bars, fitness center and spa, pool areas, or the Club Level Lounge. The Ritz-Carlton, Washington D.C. provides plush dog beds, dog bowls, and healthy, all-natural dog treats and charges a $125 non-refundable dog cleaning fee per stay, in addition to a $50 nightly dog boarding fee. Dogs must weigh 40 pounds or less or be leashed or held in arms at all times.
- Staypineapple: All Staypineapple properties are dog-friendly and feature perks such as a treat tin, water bowl, walk-friendly waste bags, and a dog bed for use during the guests' stay. There are no height or weight restrictions on pets, but the hotels charge a $25 nightly fee. Dogs may be kept in the room while owners are out exploring, provided they do not disturb other guests with barking or howling, in which case additional charges may be incurred.
- Westin: There are 165 dog-friendly properties within the Westin brand, although terms may vary from one hotel to another, including weight restrictions and whether a nightly fee is charged. Guests receive a welcome kit including food and water bowls, an in-room sign, and the canine version of the Heavenly Bed. Owners must sign a waiver at check-in and will be held responsible for excessive damage or cleaning.

All hotel information is up-to-date as of May 2019. Please call each individual hotel when planning your trip as pet-friendly rooms may not always be available.
